

Our decision to publish detailed admissions data reflects a simple but important principle: we believe that a school should hold itself to the highest standards of fairness and openness. Our vision is rooted in equal opportunity, and genuine equality begins with an honest understanding of where inequalities and underrepresentation exist. By sharing this information publicly, we are choosing to confront those challenges directly rather than allowing them to remain hidden.

The data we are releasing today does not yet reflect the school we aspire to be. That is precisely why we are making it visible. Transparency creates accountability, and accountability drives improvement. We invite you to return next year and see the progress we are committed to making as our policies and processes evolve to be better serve all parts of our community.

We take our responsibilities to local families seriously. Clear information helps reduce suspicion and misinformation, and it empowers parents to make informed decisions about their children's education. Openness strengthens trust, and trust is essential for a school to serve its community with integrity.

By taking this step, we also hope to encourage a wider conversation across the grammar school sector. Transparent data can help all of us reflect more deeply on the purpose and processes of selective education. If our decision prompts other schools to follow suit, it will contribute to a more constructive, evidence-based dialogue about how grammar school admissions can be fairer and more inclusive.

This is the beginning of a long-term commitment. Transparency is not a one-off gesture; it is a promise to keep striving for a system that offers every local child a fair chance to succeed.

Notes about the data: Primary School data is reliant upon parent input at time of registration. Omissions in the data may be explained by departures, admission of in-year applicants, EHCs (including those from out of catchment) or those admitted via appeal. Following standard procedure, any instances of less than 5 candidates have been recorded as '0' to protect the anonymity of individuals. No claims of causation should be made from this data. Blanks represent zero.
