In the Lecture Theatre

David Gwillim, (Parent of Tom Gwillim (OR 2016-2018)), left with A Levels in Maths, Physics and Chemistry and attended Liverpool University to read Engineering. It became pretty clear that engineering was not what he thought it was and I changed to read Law. After graduation, he worked in-house at a civil engineering company in Germany, returned to the UK to qualify as a solicitor. He has worked in the City of London at various law firms honing his specialism in Construction and Engineering Law.

Throughout his career, he has continued to train and obtain further qualifications, finishing his Master's degree at Kings College London and qualifying as a Solicitor Advocate.

This Law Inspire Lecture has been led and arranged by Careers Prefect, Oliver K and Mrs L Ayres, Assistant Head.
