CARDIOLOGY TALK

Dr Lindsey Tilling BSc MBBS MRCP PhD is a consultant cardiologist working at the Royal Berkshire hospital. She trained in London, and undertook fellowships in heart failure and implantable cardiac device therapy. She became a consultant 3 years ago, and manages patients with all forms of heart disease. She has a particular interest in heart muscle problems, and spends one day a week implanting cardiac devices, including pacemakers and defibrillators.

She attended a grammar school, and was inspired to do medicine following a careers talk by a visiting doctor. She is married with two small boys, and lives in West London.
